CASTLE HOWARD MAUSOLEUM

Castle Howard Estate, Ryedale, North Yorkshire The Mausoleum, by Hawksmoor, 1729-42, and modelled on the tomb of Metella, is a major feature of the Howardian Hills. Situated on a bluff east of Castle Howard. The columns were repaired with a grant in the 1980s. The entablature and bastions continue to decay. Much of the damage is due to rusting cramps. The staircase balustrade is collapsing.

Of the 176 entries on the baseline 1999 Yorkshire and the Humber buildings at risk register, 91 (52%) have now been removed. Although this is 6% higher than the regional average for 2008, our rate of progress is slowing. Of the five entries removed this year, only one was on the 1999 register.

This is because the core of buildings remaining from the 1999 register are either scheduled monuments with no obvious use, or buildings with a problematic future that require a strategic re-think to provide a viable solution. Despite these problems, we are continuing to work with owners, local authorities, trusts and other funding bodies to try to secure the long-term future of these buildings and structures. Just over half (52%) of the regional grants budget (almost £500,000) was offered to eleven buildings at risk in the last financial year.

There are four new entries this year: in North Yorkshire, St Leonard's Church at Sand Hutton, and in West Yorkshire, Hopton Congregational Church in Mirfield, Westwood Mills at Linthwaite, and Stank Hall near Leeds. This gives a total of 122 Grade I and II* listed buildings and scheduled monuments at risk entries on the Yorkshire and the Humber register. In addition, four registered battlefields at risk are included on the regional register for the first time this year.

Grimsby Ice Factory, North East LincoInshire, listed Grade II* and dating from 1900, is thought to be the earliest surviving ice factory in Britain, and the sole survivor from this period to retain its machinery. It is a typical example of a longstanding building at risk where yesterday's cutting edge technology has become today's dinosaur. Whilst a creative re-use could catalyse regeneration in the area, we are seriously concerned about the building's current poor condition and are in ongoing discussions about both the need for holding repairs and long term solutions based on the regeneration of the local area generally.

Battle of Towton, SITE NAME: Lead / Saxton with Scarthingwell / Towton DESIGNATION: Registered battlefield TRAIECTORY: Declining OWNERSHIP: Private © Battlefields Trust PHOTO

High, bleak, arable land near Tadcaster was the scene of a ten-hour battle in March 1461 during the Wars of the Roses, costing c28,000 lives. Artefacts and arrowheads from the battle have been consistently targeted by metal detectorists, some unauthorised and working independently of any agreed archaeological survey. At least one episode of deep ploughing may have disturbed a possible mass grave.
